

THE STEEL COMPANY CASE

Trouble Between Frick and Carnegie of Long Standing.

The Former Manager Offended on Previous Occasions—He Once Remained in Europe Until His Partner Apologized—A Misunderstanding About Certain Coke Contracts.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 16.—Dailzell, Scott, and Gordon, attorneys for the Carnegie Steel Company, have acknowledged service of the papers in the suit brought against the company by John D. Frick, formerly manager of the company, but they insist that papers must be served on all the defendants, some of whom are in Europe, and say that it will be several weeks before the suit is completed.

Since the open rupture between Carnegie and his manager, it has come to light that in 1884 Frick, who was then the head of the H. C. Frick Coke Company, of which Carnegie was the principal stockholder, was so greatly offended by the conduct of Carnegie and one of his employees that he left Pittsburgh without notifying Carnegie, went to Europe, and remained there until Carnegie sent over a friend and apologized to him.

As the story goes, one day Mr. Frick and some of the managers of rival coke companies, with which he had formed a syndicate for regulating the price of coke, were in consultation. John Walker, known then as Carnegie's right-hand man, walked in. He and Frick were not friends. Frick looked up and said: "Mr. Walker, are you aware that this is a private meeting of business men?" "Oh, I know that," replied Mr. Walker. "But I don't suppose you will object to telling me the price coke is to sell at, will you? You know my company uses a good deal of it."

Frick made no reply, but some one else said that the price of coke was $1.50 a ton. "I am sorry," said Walker, "but Andy Carnegie says that the price which the H. C. Frick Company will charge, beginning tomorrow, is $1.35."

There was silence until Walker left the room, and then Frick realized the significance of the coke syndicate remarking that, as the managers had just heard what the representative of the majority stockholder of the Frick Company had to say, there was nothing more for him to say. After Carnegie apologized and brought Frick back from Europe, Frick regained the fullest confidence of the Carnegie Steel Company, but it is said that even if he forgave Carnegie, he never forgot the incident.

Another thing, under which he chafed, was that Carnegie, since the Homestead strike, had in speeches, as he charged by implication, made it appear that he shifted the responsibility for the labor troubles to Frick, who was the official head of the strike. Frick, responsible for the strike in many minor matters, it is said, that Carnegie's attitude toward him became wider when Frick found he was in Carnegie's eyes, responsible for the strike. Frick, the syndicate to buy Carnegie's interests in the steel company.

Frick, Judge Moore, of Chicago, and some of the smaller stockholders had paid $1,000,000 to Carnegie as an option on a sale of all his interests in the company for $15,000,000. The syndicate could not raise the money in time and Frick and Judge Mellon, a Pittsburgh capitalist, went to Skibo Castle, Scotland, to get Carnegie to extend the time. Carnegie said that since he made the price his interests had advanced $20,000,000, and he would, therefore, sell at a new price of $17,000,000 if he got another $1,000,000 bonus for the option. Frick and Mellon left immediately, but they went to another neighborhood and let Carnegie know where they could be found. Although they stayed there for six weeks Carnegie did not let them and they returned home. Now it is said that Carnegie really wanted to sell, although he did not wish to disclose his anxiety to do so and he held Frick responsible for not having renewed the negotiations.

Persons who know both Frick and Carnegie say that there are grave causes for the destruction of the relations between the two men for they recall three years ago, while Carnegie was on his way to New York city, that he put his arm around Mr. Frick's neck in the Union Station in Pittsburgh and said to the men who were there to see him off:

"You gentlemen don't know Mr. Frick. The newspapers of Pittsburgh have no idea of the good he has done the city. The time will come when you will see the newspapers and the public of Pittsburgh will admit that Henry Clay Frick is the greatest man this city has ever produced. That's right, Henry Frick. I mean what I say."

The conflict between Frick and Carnegie is being watched keenly in Philadelphia by men interested in the manufacture of steel. It is thought by some of the Philadelphia men that Frick, irrespective of the outcome of his suit against Carnegie, is going ahead to establish, in conjunction with other capitalists, another steel plant for the manufacture of armor plate, especially for the United States Government. It is said that he believes that Andrew Carnegie's utterances against expansion and in favor of free trade for steel industries will not hinder him in the McKinley Administration, and that in bidding for new contracts for armor and structural steel, other things being equal, Frick and his associates will have an advantage over the Carnegie Steel Company. It is asserted that the Carnegie company has never really competed with the Bethlehem Steel Company, but

It's Commercial Heroism to Meet Loss Logically.

In the face of these fierce volleys of reduction we stand unflinchingly by that policy that has ruled our career—never to drag one season into the next. February 20 is the arbitrary close of winter and the opening of spring. There's no sentiment surrounding the sacrifices. Purely business—and we prosecute them with the same energy and earnestness of profit selling. The title of bargain was never more consistently applied than to the items that form—

A TRAIL OF BAD CHECKS

Frank M. Slayton Wanted In Many Cities For Alleged Forgeries.

A Man With Many Aliases Under Arrest in Genesee, N. Y.—A Fondness for Posing as an Army Officer—He Is Said to Be Insane—His Operations Cover a Very Wide Field.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 16.—Frank M. Slayton, 27 years old, the son of Mrs. Julia P. Slayton of 7 Hamilton Avenue, Stapleton, Staten Island, well dressed, finely educated, but said to be insane, was taken to Genesee, N. Y., this morning by Sheriff Howard, of Genesee county, charged with forgery. He is wanted in at least a half-dozen cities, and his record is novel inasmuch as he is alleged to have forged the names of prominent people to checks in the different towns in which he worked. So far, he has been found to have used eight aliases, seven of them having Lieutenants of the United States Army attached.

Slayton arrived in Buffalo last Sunday and registered at the Hotel Iroquois as William Polk Jr., of New York, a descendant of former President Polk. He went to police headquarters and offered a reward of $500 for a brother, he said, who was missing, and was insane from disease contracted while in Cuba with the Seventy-first New York Volunteers. His father, he claimed, was Dr. William Polk, of No. 7 East Twenty-sixth Street, New York. He called at police headquarters twice Monday, and in the afternoon was arrested for trying to pass a check on former City Clerk Frank Gotthofer, for $20, signed, "C. Diehl, Mayor of N. Y. city." His shirt was marked P. M. Slayton. Tuesday he admitted that he was Frank Slayton, of Staten Island, and a letter from his mother said that he was of the New York address, but so far as that he never heard of him. Slayton, it is said, is known to the Washington, D. C., police.

The local police authorities say that Slayton never operated in Washington. They have his record and a list of the alleged forgeries in other cities, but so far as they know he never attempted to pass any worthless drafts here.

Fastest Torpedoboot Afloat.

The marvelous speed of the modern torpedoboot is hardly conceivable. The speed made by the British destroyer Viper on her recent trial trip was thirty-eight knots, or forty-four and one-third miles, an hour, a creditable gain for an express train. This is the fastest speed ever made by a ship through the water, and it is claimed that the speed limit has not yet been reached. The speed limit has been reached by a destroyer in the Navy, and it is claimed that the speed limit has not yet been reached.
